MEMORANDUM FOR THE RECORD

SUBJECT: Search for Certain Materials at the Library of Congress

1. Pursuant to instructions, [] , a contract employee of project TPMURILLO, proceeded to the Library of Congress (LC) in order to determine whether certain issues of Pereklichka (Parole), a Russian emigre periodical, are available there. (Before he went to LC, we had received copies of a part of a serialized article by N. VINOGRADOV, entitled "From History: About the So-Called 'Trust'".) The issues we required to complete our set were numbered 130 through 133; 135 through 137; plus however many issues constituted the beginning of the article (i.e., preceding issue Number 126) and the end (i.e., following issue Number 138).

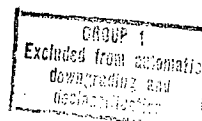

2. [] was able to determine that Pereklichka was a Russian language monthly published by the Veterans Association of the Armies of General DENIKIN and General WRANGEL. The Association is more commonly known as the Gallipoli Society. The publication was printed by the East Side Press, New York, and the editor was Aleksandr Konstantinovich PAVLOV, a former colonel in the "White" army and a member of the Association. The periodical was distributed in Brazil, Argentina, Australia, and France, as well as other countries through representatives of the Association.

3. [] found that LC has bound its copies of Pereklichka in four volumes and is now in the process of accessioning and cataloguing them. They are arranged as follows:

Volume I	Issues Number 22-41	1953-54
Volume II	Issues Number 42-63	1955-57
Volume III	Issues Number 64-100	1957-1960
Volume IV	Issues Number 101-141	1960-63

Beginning with issue Number 100 the periodical changed its name to Nasha Pereklichka (Our Parole). In ca 1962 a conflict developed between PAVLOV and the Association; and, as a result, he left the Association but continued as editor until his death sometime in 1963. At that time the periodical announced that it was ceasing publication due to the demise of its editor.

4. Examining all Pereklichka (and Nasha Pereklichka) issues, [] was unable to find any article dealing with the "Trust". The articles of which we have copies do not appear in the respective issues of Pereklichka in the bound LC volumes. Another project analyst recalled that Kamkin's Book Store currently carries monthly issues of a publication known as Pereklichka. We will obtain a copy of this publication at the first opportunity. Our assumption is that one of the Association's outposts (possibly one in South America) continued publication of Pereklichka after the discontinuation of the central organ in 1963. This possibility does not, however, solve the problem of locating the 1963 issues containing the "Trust" articles. Another peculiarity in this situation is the fact that no Pereklichka issue in LC bound volumes has more than 17 pages; yet one of the articles which we have runs through page 20.

5. In the course of examining each issue of Pereklichka in LC volumes, [] noted the following items of interest:
